There is a certain amount of work that had to be done before I could start this article. You might think that it is not worth the effort that was put into writing this blog post, but you would be wrong. I did the editing, proofreading, and technical corrections for this article myself. It has been a very long process and it has taken over two weeks to complete the full tasks needed for publishing this blog post. There were some problems with formatting and errors in my original writing which took quite a bit of time to fix. On top of the work I did to fix my mistakes, I also had to look up a lot of images on the Internet for this article. In total, it took approximately five days from the time that I started writing this blog post until it was completely finished. I am going to publish the first chapter of my Monster Girl Quest Fanfiction on my blog, but I will need your help to make this possible. Many people have been asking me if they can read my story and even some people have been asking me if they can find a copy of my story on some other sites on the Internet. Unfortunately, there are many websites that have been hacked and stolen from. The original version of my story was on a website that was taken down without any notice. The people who hacked the website also stole my story, changed it, and published it on their site so that people would think they wrote it. However, you can find an unedited version of my story on the website which is now run by vgperson. I will be writing chapter 2 soon so keep checking my blog for future updates. If you are interested in reading chapter 1 of my Monster Girl Quest Fanfiction then please leave a comment below this blog post. Please let me know what you think about the chapter and if you liked the characters or not. I will also be releasing a poll on my blog once I publish chapter 2. About the Author: April is a twenty-year-old college student who has been writing since she was seven years old. She used to write fanfiction stories about her favorite characters, but she decided to start writing her own original stories after she finished reading one of the first chapters of manga. Since then, she has been writing many different types of story ideas, from romance stories to teen drama stories. In the future, April would like to continue writing as a career and try to publish some of her work as a novel or ebook. As for now, April is just interested in publishing her novel on Amazon Kindle or on Smashwords.
